“Ten Directions: The 10th Anniversary Exhibition of Three Shadows Photography Award” presents the diverse photographic practices of young Chinese artists over the last ten years and a review and summary of the achievements of the Three Shadows Photography Award. We invite viewers to transcend the static definition of photography and consider the visions and emotions inspired by the medium. “Ten Directions' sets a scene, helping the audience understand how Chinese photographers and artists work with photos, moving forward and pushing boundaries," says the gallery.

Three Shadows has invited more than 30 directors over the last decade joining with the curators from the most important art galleries in the industry. To name a few: from Tate Modern in London, Museum of Modern Art, New York, and Getty Art Gallery in Los Angeles, Simon Baker and Quentin Bayek, among others. They have also achieved support from the most prominent photographic artists including Sheila Bessie, Candida Heffer, and Thomas Ruff, among others, all of whom came to Three Shadows to participate and witness the growing of a new generation of Chinese photographers.

"In addition, we also invited international and domestic experts such as Karen Smith, Gu Ke, Kanazawa Taro, and Cai Meng to write academic articles for this exhibition's catalogue, and will invite industry experts, artists, and related persons to conduct series of seminars during the exhibition," the centre says.

"Ten Directions: The 10th Anniversary Exhibition of Three Shadows Photography Award" will run through August 5, 2018, at Three Shadows Photography Art Centre, Beijing, 155A Caochangdi, Chaoyang District, Beijing, China 100015.
